

Import Outlook for Fishery Products

FY 2005 Forecast: $11.3 Billion

Initial FY 2006 Forecast: $11.5 Billion

Key Trends

- As the third largest fishery product importer, behind Japan and the European Union, the U.S. continues to increasingly compete for quality products such as salmon, crab, lobster, and shrimp
- Imports are up from the top five suppliers - Canada, Thailand, China, Indonesia, and Chile and they are expected to continue to increase in FY 2006. The top five suppliers account for 54 percent of total U.S. fishery product imports

Key Issues

- The ITC's "changed circumstances" review of antidumping duties on imports of shrimp from Thailand and India will be a factor for FY 2006 imports
- The tuna industry is concerned about FDA mercury warnings and a 10 percent decline in sales
